"GOD BLESS YOU"

"Uncle Bill" Allen Loses Seat in House Gracefully, Says
the Frankfort State Journal.

"God bless you, brother, they've sent me home."

Never a tremor, not the flicker of an eyelash marked the statement coming from "Uncle Bill" Allen, as he responded to the greeting of the State Journal representative after the members of the House had voted to oust him yesterday in favor of S. C. Dobbs, his Democratic opponent.

With the big face wreathed in a smile that gave the observer the impression that "Uncle Bill" had not a care in the world, the erstwhile Representative from the Clinton-Wayne district shook hands with his numerous friends and apparently was given but little concern to the fact that he had been declared a usurper.

But the strain was too great. For many minutes he maintained the same nonchalant air while his very heart strings must have been torn by the anguish that followed the action of the members of the House. Then came the break.

Suddenly his big frame shook and "Uncle Bill" gulping once or twice to keep back the big tears, gave way to his feelings and like a child he threw his arms about one of his close friends —and a Democratic friend at that—and gave vent to his feelings in a real old-fashioned cry.

Withal, however, it never occurred to "Uncle Bill" to offer a word of censure. To his closest friend he expressed the sentiment that he had been wronged. But to the public in a statement given out for the newspapers there was not the slightest sign of bitterness; not the slightest indication that "Uncle Bill" had a sort spot.

ODDFELLOWS' COMMITTEE

Elects Those Who Will Have Charge of the Indigent Home At Eminence.

The committee appointed by the Grand Lodge I. O. O. F., to have charge of the home for indigent Odd Fellows, wives, widows and Rebekahs, met at Eminence Friday and organized by electing Judge E. B. January of Paris, president and treasurer, and J.
C. Helburn of Eminence, secretary.
The board then appointed S. T. Douthitt of Newcastle, and J. C. Helburn of Eminence, a board of control until the meeting of the Grand Lodge in October, and they were instructed to make such repairs and improvements as will put the dormitory in good shape.

E. B. January, A. W. Clements and George I. Breiel were appointed a committee to draft by-laws for the government of the home.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Clendenin of Paris, were elected superintendent and matron and will take charge of the home at an early date and help to get it in shape for receiving guests. This will probably take some time.

Treasurer January was instructed to collect all outstanding pledges and to secure as many new pledges and donations as possible.

11,335,995

Is the Number of Pounds of Tobacco
Sold On the Maysville Breaks
This Season.

With the closing of the sales Friday at the various loose leaf tobacco warehouses here the official figures began compiling the sales for this season, and after footing up each day's actual sales it was found that 11,335-995 pounds had been the total of all sales up to this week.

This is a considerable shortage over the same period of last season, and many tobacco men are of the opinion that there will not be over 17,000-000 pounds sold this season on this market.

If this be the case, and the offerings continue as heavy as they have the last two weeks, there will be no tobacco for sale after March 1, unless it is imported from some foreign territory.

Tobacco Supervisor's Report.

The Maysville tobacco market for the last week was about up to the standard. Grade for grade prices remained about the same, while the average was not quite up to last week.
The cold, dry weather had the effect to make the tobacco look harsh and not show up to a good advantage.

The market sold for the week a total of 2,265,112 pounds at an average of $10.96. Rejections continue about the same. Tobacco not moving on account of the dry weather.

IMPORT DUTIES HELP EXPORTS.

Some people express the belief that an import duty can not affect exports; that is to say that an import duty can not possibly help develop an export trade. It happens, however, that both experience and reason support the opposite view. America's export trade has risen with the imposition of import duties. Similar experience has been had in other countries. For instance, comparing the four-year period 1890-94 with the four-year period 1907-11, the exports of manufactured articles from free trade England increased only 64.5 per cent while similar exports from protected Germany increased 140 per cent and exports of manufactures from the United States increased 317 per cent. These figures are taken from a special article written from Berlin for the Christian Science Monitor, a paper that is not partisan in politics.

The facts demonstrated by experience having been stated, let us look for the reason. To be an exporter of any commodity, a nation must necessarily be a large producer—a producer of a surplus beyond its own needs. In this country, where we insist upon high standards of living, we can not build up and maintain manufactures unless we protect those industries from the competition of cheaper labor from abroad. But, having been built up to large proportions by the aid of a protective tariff, factories are able to reduce the unit of cost of production by reason of the large quantities produced. Construction of a large plant and building up a large force of trained men is not practicable without assurance of a permanent business, but when such a plant has been established to manufacture for the home market, a surplus can easily be produced at a relatively low unit cost and this can be sold to foreign buyers in competition with other countries. The production of the salable surplus depends upon the large permanent establishment. Here, therefore, you have the reason why the United States and Germany surpassed England in the rate of increase of exports of manufactured articles.

THE DISAPPEARANCE OF THE FRONTIER.

A young college professor who was suffering from ill health recently made an effort to find a farm proposition at a moderate price. He spent several months looking at many properties in the western states. He had little money and found nothing that he felt like buying on mortgage. The farms offered for moderate prices all had defects. Water rights were often unsatisfactory, or the moisture was too uncertain. Fruit orchards frequently suffered from some pest. Plenty of good farms were offered him, but at prices he called prohibitive for him.

The professor was so discouraged by these obstacles that he went into Canada, and spent several months in some of the newer sections now being opened to settlement. It seemed to him that it would take a whole generation to get these new lands into profitable propositions, with comfortable living conditions.

He felt the Canadian governments were much to blame for holding out too flattering hopes for pioneers. He advised settlers to stay in the United States, where the obstacles, serious as they are, are not as discouraging.

With such conditions as these existing, it is not surprising that there is an urgent demand for a system of rural credits that will lend money on farm land at lower rates. Illusory hopes may and no doubt are entertained, of what can be done by a farm credit system. But the country is in great need of some method by which young men who want farms can secure them under favorable conditions without assuming such heavy interest burdens. The frontier has disappeared, good land costs high, and buying a farm is not the easy affair it was a few years ago.

BETTER BUSINESS EDUCATION.

The United States Commissioner of Education has asked Congress for a small appropriation for work for improvement of commercial education. It is claimed that while half the high school pupils are taking commercial work, that form of education is overshadowed in the public mind and is neglected.

As fast as one army of stenographers and bookkeepers is turned out a lot get married or quit work, and a new horde of more or less untrained successors comes along. Competence can not be acquired without long practice, but good work in schools would teach some fundamentals of business life that many never grasp.

Probably the first principle to be insisted on in business education is accuracy. There are a hundred ways of making a mistake and only one correct method. General intelligence counts very high in a business office. The good business woman will read the newspapers and trade papers more than popular novels. If the government can do anything to promote accuracy and general intelligence among commercial students, it will accomplish something that business men feel the need of.

The Department of Commerce warns the American business man to "guard against any sense of safety in our present prosperity insofar as that prosperity is based on business connected with the belligerent activities in Europe." Thanks, but your warning is not needed. We are not deceiving ourselves. We know the facts as shown by the records. We know that when the Democratic administration came into power we had a huge balance of trade in our favor. We know that immediately imports increased and exports decreased until we had an actual monthly balance of trade against us. We know that the balance continued against us until the war began. We know that our trade with all the world not at war is against us. We know we have the war to thank for whatever prosperity we have. We told you that months ago and have no need of your repeating it back to us. Our "sense of safety" is not abnormal, but we expect it will be considerably improved after the election next November.

There is much talk about inducing more men to become school teachers, but so far not many of them have given up $4 a day jobs as railroad men or bricklayers to accept a $15 a week job in the school room.

The old theory was that the place of a woman is in her home. Now it seems to be down at the church dishing out a 50-cent oyster supper for 20 cents.

STINGAREE

THE BLACK HOLE OF GLEN-RANALD.

It was coming up the Murrumbidgee that Fergus Carrick first heard the name of Stingaree. With the cautious enterprise of his race, the young gentleman had booked steerage on a river steamer whose solitary passenger he proved to be. Accordingly he was not only permitted to sleep on the saloon settee at night, but graciously bidden to the captain's board by day.

On his arrival at Glenranald, however, he found that substantial township shaking with laughter over the outlaw's latest and least creditable exploit, at the back block helmet of Yallaroo, and then it was that young Carrick first conceived an ambition to open his colonial career with the capture of Stingaree.

The idea had birth under one of the many pine trees which shaded the skeleton streets of budding Glenranald. On this tree was nailed a placard offering high reward for the bushranger's person alive or dead. Fergus was making an immediate note in his pocketbook when a hand fell on his shoulder.

"Would ye like the half o' yon?" inquired a voice in his own tongue, and there at his elbow stood an elderly gentleman, whose patriarchal beard hid half the buttons of his alpaca coat, while a black skull cap sat somewhat jauntily on his head.

The raw youth stared ingeniously. "But what can you know about me?" he asked.

"I saw ye land at the wharf," said the old gentleman, nodding his approval of the question, "and says I 'That's my man' as soon as ever I clapped eyes on ye."

"Are you a squatter, sir?" the young man asked, a little overwhelmed.

"No, sir, I'm branch manager o' the Bank o' New South Wales, the only bank within a hunder miles o' where ye stand, and I can offer ye a better billet than any squatter in the colony."

"Indeed? I'm sure you're very kind, sir, but I'm wanting to get on a station," protested Fergus with all his tact.

"Quite right, quite right! I like a man who can keep his tongue in his kennel!" cried the bank manager, rubbing his hands. "But wait while I tell ye. Ye'd need to work for your rations on any station I ever heard tell of, and I keep the accounts of enough to know. Now, with me ye'd get £2 a week till your share o' the reward was wiped off, and if we had no luck for a year ye'd be no worse off, but could go and try your squatters then. That's a promise, and I'll keep it as sure as my name's Andrew Macbean!"

"But how do you propose to catch this fellow?"

The bank manager looked on all sides, likewise behind the tree, before replying under his breath: "By setting a wee trap for him! A bank's a bank, and Stingaree hasn't stuck one up since he took to his trade. But I'll tell ye no more till ye give me your answer. Yes or no?"

"I'm afraid I don't even write an office hand, and as for figures—"

"Did I say I was going to take ye into the bank, man?" cried he. "There's three of us already to do the writin' an' the cipherin', an' three's enough. Can ye ride?"

"I have ridden."

"And ye'll do any rough job I set ye to?"

"That's all I ask. There's a buggy and a pair for ye to mind, and mebbe drive, though it's horseback errands ye'll do most of."

With characteristic prudence the youth had left his baggage on board the river steamer, and his own hands carried it piecemeal to the bank. This was a red brick bungalow with an ample veranda, standing back from the future street that was as yet little better than a country road. The veranda commanded a long perspective of pines, but no further bricks and mortar and but very few weather board walls.

The yard behind the house was shut in by as many outbuildings as clustered about the small homesteads which Fergus had already beheld on the banks of the Murrumbidgee. The man in charge of the yard was patently in liquor, a chronic condition from his general appearance, and Mr. Macbean discharged him on the spot with a decision which left no loophole for appeal.

Fergus waited in increasing excitement. The day's events were worthier of a dream.

His mystification was now complete. Unimaginative as he was by practice and profession, he had an explanation a minute until the time was up, when the truth beat them all for wild improbability. Macbean had risen, lifting the lamp. Holding it on high, he led the way through balze doors into the banking premises. Here was another door, which Macbean not only unlocked, but locked again behind them both. A small inner office led them into a shuttered chamber of fair size, with a broad polished counter, glass swing doors and a formidable portal beyond. And one of young Carrick's theories received apparent confirmation on the spot, for the manager slipped behind his counter by another door and at once whipped out a great revolver.

"This they provide us with," said he. "So far it is our only authorized defense, and it hangs on a hook down here behind the counter. But you march in here prepared, your pistol cocked behind your back, and which of us is likely to shoot first?" "The bushranger," said Fergus, still rather more startled than reassured. "The bushranger, of course. Stingaree, let us say. As for me, either my arms go up, or down I go in a heap. But supposing my arms do go up—supposing I still touch something with one foot, and supposing the floor

On This Tree Was Nailed a Placard of the Reward.

just opens and swallows Mr. Sangunary Stingaree! Eh, eh, what then?"

All at once Fergus seized the lamp on his own initiative and set it on the floor before the kneeling elder, going upon his own knees on the other side. "A trapdoor!" exclaimed Fergus in a whisper.

A trapdoor it was, of huge dimensions, almost exactly covered by the self colored square. But at each side a tongue of linoleum had been left loose for lifting it, and the lamp had scarcely been replaced upon the counter when the bulk of the floor leaned upright in one piece against the opposite wall. It had uncovered a pit of corresponding size, but as yet hardly deep enough to afford a hiding place for the bucket, spade and pickaxe which lay there on a length of sack.

"You're going to make a deep hole of it?"

"No. I'm going to pay you to make it deep for me."

"And then?"

"At dead of night; you can take out your sleep by day."

"When Stingaree comes?"

"If he waits till we're ready for him."

"You touch some lever?"

"And the floor swallows him, as I said, if he waits till we are ready for him. Everything depends on that and on your silence. In the end I suppose I shall have to tell Donkin, my cashier, and Fowler the clerk. Donkin's a dilettante who deserves the name o' Dildymore more than any mon o' my acquaintance. Fowler would take so kindly to the whole idea that he'd blurt it out within a week."

The young man's answer was to strip off his coat and spring into the hole and set to work with such energy, yet so quietly, that the bucket was filled in a few almost silent seconds. Macbean carried it off, unlocking doors for the nonce, while Fergus remained in the hole to mop his forehead.

To and fro, over the lip of the closing well, back into the throat of the deepening hole, went the buckets for many a night. It was now the beginning of the cool but brilliant Riverina winter, and, despite the disparity in their years, the two Scotsmen were fast friends. They had worked together as one man, with the same patient passion for perfection, the same delight in detail for its own sake. Almost the only difference was that the old fellow refreshed his energies with the glass of whisky which was never far from his elbow after banking hours, while the young one cultivated the local excess of continual tea. And all this time the rascally Stingaree ranged the district, with or without his taciturn accomplice, covering great distances in fabulous time, lurking none know where and springing on the unwary in the last places in which his presence was suspected.

"But he has not yet robbed a bank, and we have our hopes," wrote Fergus to a faithful sister at Launce. "It may be for fear of the revolvers with which all the banks are provided now. Mr. Macbean has been practicing with ours and purposely put a bullet through one of our back windows. The trapdoor over the pit is now practically finished. It's too complicated to describe, but Stingaree has only to march into the bank and 'stick it up,' and the man behind the counter has only to touch a lever with his foot for the villain to disappear through the door into a prison it'll take him all his time to break. On Saturday the cashier and the clerk are coming to dinner, and before we sit down they are to be shown everything."

This episode will be shown at the Washington Theater Thursday night.

AFTER SIX YEARS OF SUFFERING

Woman Made Well by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

Columbus, Ohio.—"I had almost given up. I had been sick for six years with female troubles and nervousness. I had a pain in my right side and could not eat anything without hurting my stomach. I could not drink cold water at all nor eat any kind of raw fruit, nor fresh meat nor chicken. From 178 pounds I went to 118 and would get so weak at times that I fell over. I began to take Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, and ten days later I could eat and it did not hurt my stomach. I have taken the medicine ever since and I feel like a new woman. I now weigh 127 pounds so you can see what it has done for me already. My husband says he knows your medicine has saved my life."

Mrs. J. S. BARLOW, 1624 South 4th St., Columbus, Ohio.

Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound contains just the virtues of roots and herbs needed to restore health and strength to the weakened organs of the body. That is why Mrs. Barlow, a chronic invalid, recovered so completely. It pays for women suffering from any female ailments to insist upon having Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

OUR DAILY BIRTHDAY PARTY
February 7.

Alexander Felix Joseph Ribot, the French statesman who is directing the finance of the war, is 74 years old today.

For over forty years Ribot has been active in the political life of France and has held the most important offices in the government. He has been Minister of Foreign Affairs, Prime Minister, Minister of the Interior and Minister of Finance. The Franco-Prussian alliance was brought about by Ribot, and he had a large share in achieving the entente with England. M. Ribot was born at St. Omar, in France, on February 7, 1842.

He became a lawyer and attracted much attention by his phenomenal success. He gave much of his attention to the upbuilding of the modern French nation, and no man in France is better versed in French diplomacy. His experience has been so wide that he was called to the fore a year ago to handle the financial crisis of the republic. As a loyal, unselfish and noble supporter of the government, he is trusted as few men have ever been in public periods of unrest and danger. He was the dean of the financiers of the allies who gathered in Paris a year ago and arranged for the financing of the war. M. Deafness Cannot Be Cured by local applications, as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure deafness, and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube is inflamed you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed, deafness is the result, and unless the inflammation can be taken out and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever; nine cases out of ten are caused by Catarrh, which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucous surfaces.

We give One Hundred Dollars for any case of Deafness (caused by Catarrh) that cannot be cured by Hall's Catarrh Cure. Send for circulars, free. F. J. CHENEY & CO., Toledo, O. Sold by Druggists, 75c. Take Hall's Family Pills for constipation.

HER FIRST ORDER.

St. Louis, Mo.—The first order which St. Louis' new policeman received when she went on duty last week was not to have her picture for publication. Miss Laura M. Kinkhead was the appointee, and her duty takes her into all sections of the city, looking after women who have been put on probation or paroled. Miss Kinkhead secured her appointment by proving that a woman was needed on the police force. She investigated many cases for the police and in some cases the judges revoked paroles on account of the information she secured.

Louisville, Ky., February 7.—The annual convention of the National Cannery Association opened here today, and nearly 5,000 canners are attending from all sections of the middle-west. The Wisconsin delegation is mailing a bid for the 1917 convention for Milwaukee.

A plant has been discovered in Cuba bearing fruit like figs in which flies lay their eggs, to be hatched by the sun.

RICH SMUGGLERS VS. POOR ONES.

New York.—In the records of the United States Circuit Court covering the proceedings in smuggling cases are to be found many instances verifying the oft-repeated statements that the poor smuggler goes to jail, while the wealthy offender is permitted to depart with a fine and a solemn warning. Here is a record of a few of the cases during the last six years:

The Duveens, for smuggling art merchandise worth $1,000,000, fined $50,000.

John R. Collins, for smuggling jewelry for Mrs. Helen Dwell Jenkins worth $200,000, fined $4,000.

Nathan Allen in the same case, amount involved $200,000, fined $12,000.

Mrs. Ada F. C. Adriance, wife of wealthy harvester manufacturer, for smuggling necklace worth $12,063, fined $17,063.

Mrs. Lavender B. Dunlap, wife of millionaire, in controversy over jewelry worth $61,194, fined $26,143.

P. Sebosta, Syrian, for failing to declare a harp, sentenced to seven months.

S. de Billis, for smuggling in twelve pairs of gloves, six months and fine of $100.

Mrs. Roberta M. C. Hill, for smuggling coat worth $6,000. Fined $2,000 and sentenced to three days. First woman smuggler jailed in this country.

LUMBERMAN ON TRIAL UNDER MANN ACT.

Chicago, February 7.—William R. Edwards, a wealthy lumberman from St. Paul, will be tried today in the United States District Court before Judge Kenishaw M. Landis, on the "white slave" indictment returned against him some two years ago. Edwards is charged with having transported one Ada M. Cox from Chicago to St. Paul.

An electric fire alarm siren invented by a Denver man has been heard seventeen miles.

MUST "PADDLE OWN KANUE"

Recruiting Sergeant Takes Heed of Warning, but Balks on the Instructions.

Pittsburgh, Pa.—Fearing that his runaway son would carry out an often expressed desire to enlist in the United States marine corps, Morris Kanue of Leopold, W. Va., has written to the local recruiting office of the "sea soldiers" as follows:

"U. S. Marine Corps, Pittsburgh, Pa.: I hereby warn you not to employ or hire my son, Anthony Kanue, as a submarine of the navy. He has run away from home and I think he has gone to Pittsburgh to enlist. He is only seventeen years old, in proof of which I am only thirty-nine myself. If he comes there while he is within an inch of his life and send him back to me.

"His father, MORRIS KANUE," Sergeant Michael DeBoo, in charge of the Pittsburgh recruiting office of the United States marine corps, has assured the anxious parent that the boy will not be enlisted should he apply, but that "whaling" him is out of the question, and the father should "paddle his own Kanue."

BEGGAR GETS TWO MILLION

To Buy Back His Eyesight and Own Humble Home Is Now His Ambition.

Webb City, Mo.—To buy back his eyesight, to own a humble home which he now rents and to start a bank in Webb City are the three first ambitions of the Rev. Z. R. Cotton, a blind street beggar here, who today was told that he had inherited more than $2,000,000, of which $650,000 is cash, through the death of his only brother, Powell Cotton, two weeks ago at Richmond, Ark.

The blind man continued throughout the day soliciting alms at the post office door, but will leave shortly for Richmond and will stop at Tulsa, Okla., to consult a doctor who has assured him that for a stated sum, formerly fabulous to Cotton, his eyesight can be restored perfectly. Cotton has been blind since a sickness 22 years ago. He is sixty-three years old.

TO START CHICKEN FARM

Washington society has come to expect the unexpected from Miss Gladys Ingalls, daughter of the late president of the Big Four and other railroad systems, and so they were not surprised when it became "bruited about" Washington that she was to take up chicken raising in addition to her many other activities. Miss Ingalls is noted as a society leader, horsewoman, golfer and ardent Red Cross worker. She has already purchased the property near Hot Springs and erected the buildings for the brooding of her flocks.

GOATS IN ENGLAND POPULAR

Club Formed by a Clergyman to Encourage Raising of the Animals.

London.—This is the time, when milk is dear and supplies for the household are limited, that the picturesque and useful goat takes a higher position in the economic scale.

Goat keeping by the small holder has increased considerably since the war, and suburban residents, too, have found the ownership of a goat or two less troublesome and more profitable than pigeons, rabbits or even poultry. In the view, however, of Rev. A. C. Atkins, founder of the new National Utility Goat club, the keeping of goats for utility purposes should be more largely extended, and with this aim he is taking a census of all the goats in the country.

The hatching of eggs by artificial heat has been practiced in China and Egypt since prehistoric times, hatter brick ovens being used in the latter country.

WEAK KIDNEYS MAKE WEAK BODIES

Kidney Diseases Cause Many Aches and Ills of Maysville People.

As one weak link weakens a chain, so may weak kidneys weaken the whole body and hasten the final breaking-down.

Overwork, strains, colds and other causes injure the kidneys and generally when their activity is lessened the whole body suffers.

Aches and pains and languor and urinary ills frequently come, and there is an ever-increasing tendency towards dropsy, gravel or fatal Bright's disease. When the kidneys fall there is no real help for the sufferer except kidney help.

Doan's Kidney Pills act directly on the kidneys. Maysville testimony is proof of their effectiveness.

Mrs. S. Neal, 497 W. Second St., Maysville, says: "One of my family had a great deal of trouble from a lame back and weak kidneys. Doan's Kidney Pills made the patient better."

Price 50c, at all dealers. Don't simply ask for a kidney remedy—get Doan's Kidney Pills—the same that Mrs. Neal recommends. Foster-Milburn Co., Props., Buffalo, N. Y.

Last Tuesday from the hours of 10:30 to 11:30 p. m. (now don't get excited—they had permission) Evelyn Campbell and Helen Porter entertained about fifteen girls at a farewell spread for Elizabeth Hunter, who was to leave next day. A delicious three-course midnight luncheon was served, and dainty favors given each girl present. The party will long remain one of the happy memories of McMichael Home, not only for the guest of honor, but for every girl present.

Miss Elizabeth Hunter left for her home at Maysville, Ky., last Wednesday afternoon after attending Monmouth College for the last three semesters. We are sorry to see "Liz" go and her lively spirit will be missed both at the dorm and in the college corridors.—From the Monmouth College Oracle.

Miss Elizabeth Hunter is the accomplished daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Hunter of Washington.

The Merry Twelve Club gave Miss Alice Taylor Knight a delightful surprise party at her hillside home Saturday evening. Music and games were enjoyed until a late hour, after which the guests were served with dainty refreshments.

Mrs. Alice Yazell of East Second street, entertained with a dinner Friday in honor of her guest, Mrs. Hester Lamb of Dayton. Mrs. Lamb returned home Saturday afternoon after a week's visit with her friend, Mrs. Yazell.

The weather does not seem to affect some schools. Others seem to hardly hold their own.

The revival services at the First M. E. church, South, began Sunday. The attendance was excellent. Rev. W. B. Campbell will be his own evangelist. He preached two very helpful sermons. The singer will arrive Tuesday. The public is cordially invited to these meetings.

The county and city Sunday schools should now begin their preparations for the big day, May 7. The Maysville schools should have an attendance of 2,000 in her schools on that day. On May 3, 1914, church-going Sunday, we had 2,003; on May 9, 1915, we had 1,555. Form your committees now. From carefully prepared statistics it has been found that for every dollar spent on that day five persons have become permanent church members.

[The following communication was received by The Ledger through the mails, and published by request of the gentleman whose name is signed at the bottom of the article. I have just recently had occasion to read an article in your paper signed B. F. Chatham, in last December issue, concerning his affair at Middlesboro, Ky.

In justice and warning to the innocent public I am equally constrained to offer a brief reply.

The reference he makes to testimony of the woman before the Masonic committee was an attempt to offer as a filthy and cowardly defense that he was wholly incapacitated physically to commit the crime with which he was charged; the committee having some respect for themselves and for that of a decent and respectable woman who is also the wife and daughter of a Mason, refused to allow such filth to enter into the investigation, as they found superabundance of evidence otherwise, and tried to exercise the same charity they would ask for themselves; the lodge upon the trial saw fit and did expel him.

At the trial before the Methodist body at Lexington, Ky., he was allowed to introduce testimony to this effect in his behalf, but the verdict of the committee speaks for itself; he was unanimously found guilty of this and three other charges. I have only the highest praise for the conduct and work of that committee, and the body consisting of eleven men as jurors, a chairman and prosecutor made it by no means a one-man affair; that committee will never be called upon to do a nobler work than it did in this case; it vindicated every true and deserving pastor in the state and put the church on a higher plane than ever before. I do not know what the man's physical condition as hereinbefore referred to, may be now, or what sort of patent nostrums or magic he may have to condition himself for dress parade or satisfaction of his friends to deceive, but do say that, it would have been a blessing if his condition had always been for years past as he would have you believe now.

A nobler woman never lived in any community than the one involved in this case, and not a respectable man or woman of this city where she has lived for more than twenty-five years, would doubt for a minute anything she testifies to in the case; no woman has been blessed with truer and more estimable parents than she.

The affair is unaccountable to her save the man's extraordinary power to deceive and under the guise of the sacred office as a minister and pastor, which in this case he began at the very first of his ministry here to accomplish at the close. The whole story is so awful as to make it almost unbelievable to a stranger. Know the truth and you will have the utmost charity and sympathy for the woman, and for the man, utter contempt would be an inexpressible term.

This man in his article says that newspaper articles are not always true; yes, indeed, this is a fact and his article is a most convincing illustration of it; the article he refers to in the Louisville Times of September 18th is absolutely true, every word of it, and I know whereof I speak. He actually preached a sermon from his pulpit bearing on that fact, and it caused comment from his congregation as to whom he meant.

Well may he remember his last charge as he says, and his very soul should reel in anguish as he thinks of it.

As to how he can refer to himself in such commendable term as indicated in the article is beyond my power to understand, and would naturally infer that the man is so corrupt, perverted and degenerated that his conscience knows no waking and completely seared with the devil's guile. He would not have you read the long love letter he wrote this woman last September while at conference which was found by her husband and made the beginning of the end of his career in using the sacred office of a minister and trust as a pastor to corrupt and disgrace homes; I dare say that, ninety-nine husbands out of a hundred would have inflicted punishment under the unwritten law upon that letter alone. Like everything else he denies even writing the relevant portions of this letter which speaks for itself beyond the power of contradiction.

I make the statement, that everything that has come out at the two trials referred to is, the Lord knows, bad, but in the language of the Queen, the half has not been told; if you, my fellow man, knew the man what I and others know of him, you would not permit him to look into the face of your wife or daughter. If you wish to know the truth, come here where it is and satisfy yourself, and you need not stop at this case in question alone. The man has but one attempted defense, and that is to lie with all the power Satan can furnish, and this course he has pursued, but without avail. One thing more he can do, and that is to deny that he ever was in Middlesboro, or incapacitated physically to ever have been there, and then go and hang himself as Judas did.

The footnote following the Chatham article is an infamous falsehood; the woman immediately at the beginning of the trouble resigned all her offices in the church, and is not even an attendant at the services, but pining her life away at home. So if this information came from knowing ones they certainly were not sane.

OVERWORKED MINISTER

Tells How Vinol Restored Strength and Vitality.

Maysville people will realize that we could not publish such letters as the following if they were not genuine and truthful statements of facts. The Rev. Mr. Hughes, Holly Springs, Ark., says:—

"I am a Methodist Minister, and suffered from broken-down nerves, loss of appetite and sleeplessness. I was weak, my circulation was very poor, and I was not able to do my duty in my Parish as I felt I should. I had tried various remedies but did not seem to get any better. Through Mr. Gatlin of Bearden, Ark., I learned of Vinol and it built me up. I regained my appetite, can sleep better and do more work."

There is no secret about Vinol, it derives its power to build up the overworked, broken-down, nervous system from the medicinal extractives of fresh cod livers without oil combined with tonic iron and beef peptone.

Any one in Maysville who wishes to try Vinol can do so with the understanding that we will return their money if they are not satisfied.
